for the farmer.

How to SEED LAWNS .- At this season of the year, many persons desire to reseed or prepare new lawns, and wish to know what seed to use and how to use it. There are, perhaps, no better or safer directions to follow in reference to this matter, than the following: Choose, if possible, a calm day, and sow your seed as evenly as you can. The seed to be sown should be a mixture of red top (Agrastis vulgari.) and white clover (Trifolium repens,) which are hardy, short grasses, and on the whole, best designed to make the best and most enduring lawn for this climate. The proportion should be about three-fourths red-top to one fourth clover. The seed should be perfectly clean Then sow exactly four bushels of it to the acre. Finish the whole by rolling the sur face evenly and neatly. A few soft, vernal showers and bright, sunny days will show you a coat of verdure bright as emerald By the first of June, if sown in the early part of May, you must look about for your mowers. This plan has the recommendation of Mr. Downing, one of the best authorities upon such subjects.

Tomato Raising -Mr. J. P. Low: who has paid great attention to tomato raising. gives a timely hint on seed sowing, for the benefit of those who have no hot-beds, and yet want to raise a few plants. For family use, (and it is especially with this view we write,) the plants may be started in a small box in a warm room; and for field culture in a hot-bed or green house. In quite a small box all the plants any family need may be grown. A few plants well cared for will be worth a great deal more than a large number ill grown, such as we so often see crowded to suffocation an I death in dealer's hot beds. Such long weakly things can have no value. The little box need be no viore than two feet long, a feet wide and a few inches deep, covered with glass to counteract the dryness of the atmosphere of the room. Put the box in the sunshine, keep the room warm and carefully ventilated. Do not be in too great haste to germinate the seeds; but, once started, see that the plants get no check from want of cure. - Phila. Press.

EARLY PEAS. - Get a few papers of the very earliest kind-say extra Early May. Select the warmest day in February or March you can, and spade up as much ground in a sheltered spot as you desire to plant (say an out-side fence row or wall) plant your peas thick, three inches deep; cover with warm, dry leaf-mould or chip manure. and on each side of the row lay corn-stalks, piling them up a foot on each side, so they will not fall over on the row. Scatter straw lightly over the row, so as not to fully exclude the sunlight. If very rough weather sets in (which will be the case, in all probability;) cover over the rows with plank or boards until the rough weather is over. Remove when the sun shires warmly. In this way you can have a few "messes" a month or more in advance of those planted at the usual time. The pea is quite hardy. as I have had them covered with snow when two inches high without injury, when protected as above directed.

CUCUMBERS.—Early in March procure some sod about eight inches thick. Turn them over and cut the soil so the seed can be stuck in an inch or so deep. Plant only the" Early Frame." Set the sods in a pir or hot-bed if you have them; if not, set them in a room where there is fire; water with milk-warm water occasionally as the sod gets dry; and, when warmer weather comes. The above and many other articles are furnished remove them to the garden and place small boxes a foot square, having neither bottoms nor tops, over them. At night, until the young plants get "hardened," place a pane of glass over them. Remove the boxes as the ground and the air gets warmed up, and you will have fine early eucumbers.

EARLY POTATOES. - Seeing the inquiry of "A. C." for the best early potato for market, we would say, get the Early Mohawk, as they did well for us, as you will see by this statement, viz : From 11 lbs. of seed we raised 285 lbs.6 oz.; the largest potato weigh ing 2 lbs. 1 oz.; two from one hill weigh ed 31 lbs.; fifteen of the largest weighed 331 lbs. Never have we seen a decayed spot on one of them up to this time. We find them ten days earlier than the Rose, and of fine quality .- Cor. of Country Gentleman

THE Massachusetts Plotoman says there is a close and intimate connection between the pervous and secretory systems of a cow. and this explains the fact that she will often "hold up her milk," as it is termed. It shows also that every milker should strive be on good terms with the cow he is about to milk. If he is a perfect stranger to her, he should have time to gain her confidence and good will by handling her gently and petting her, or giving her something she is fond of to eat.
